"This man Covington was formerly a Federal Judge and resigned to go with the Allen Property Corporation's office when Mr. Palmer had that office, wasn't he?" asked Chairman Kenyon.

"I don't know exactly," was the reply.

"And the size of the fee Mr. Covington got at the time caused public comment?"

"I've only heard a little about that," Covington got at the time caused Mr. Carlin said.

Resuming the reading from his list, Mr. Carlin said John P. Crosby, Hartford, gave $1,000; O. Michaels, $1,500; William C. Devitt, Pennsylvania, $1,000; F. J. Barrow, New York City, $500; W. H. Caldwell, $500; Robert Law Jr., New York City, $1,000; F. R. Garvin, Assistant Attorney General, $1,000.

Chairman Kenyon asked for the identification of each man, but Mr. Carlin said he knew nothing in detail about any of them.

"When the committee sought to get details about the Pennsylvania party right over the Palmer candidacy, Mr. Carlin said he had not participated."

"Let me tell you something not in a personal way," said Senator Reed. "This committee has had too many managers and have no information about things like this."

"I would have known, but I was instructed to keep my hands off Pennsylvania because the men there would handle the situation themselves," Mr. Carlin replied.

Senator Edge of New Jersey, asked about Georgia and Michigan primary elections. Mr. Carlin said $5,000 had been contributed to election expenses under State law in Georgia. Clark Howell of Atlanta, he said, assisted in the campaign.

In Georgia the contest against Mr. Palmer was "accidental," Mr. Carlin said, while in Pennsylvania he claimed it as "unexpected."

During a partisan tilt within the committee ranks, Senator Reed declared that in the history of the Democratic Party no man has started out to get a Presidential nomination by the process of spending $400,000 of his own money.

Q. Aren't you counsel for the Chicago packers, A. No, sir.

Q. Aren't you counsel for the Crucible Steel Company, A. I am not.

Q. You are counsel for Mr. Du Pu, President of the Crucible Steel Company, A. I am.

Q. And the Crucible Steel Company defrauded the United States Government out of $10,000,000, didn't it, in income taxes, A. Something like that.

Q. You know the Crucible Steel paid the Government back $10,000,000, A. It did not, it was $9,000,000.

Q. It was $9,000,000, Mr. Du Pu was Chairman of the Board of Directors, not President of the Crucible Company.

Q. Well you are attorney for him in this matter, A. I am not, I am representing Mr. Du Pu in the matter of his own and his wife's income tax. The other officers of the Crucible Company were responsible for the other.

Q. Now the situation as to Crucible Steel is that $9,000,000 has been paid back, Who is being persecuted, A. That matter is settled.

Q. Can men defraud the Government of sums like this and get away without any punishment as criminals, A. I take it you haven't read the Statute. It specifically provides for settlements in these matters by the payment of money.

Mrs. Halley W. Wilson of Minnesota, at $1,000 a month, proved to be the highest salaried employee on the Palmer list.

"A very brilliant woman, formerly secretary of a suffrage league," Mr. Carlin said.

"You've found some active symptoms of a campaign for W. G. McAdoo, as a Democratic candidate against Mr. Palmer?" Chairman Kenyon asked.

"It has all the earmarks, though I've seen that Mr. Baruch said he wasn't a candidate," Mr. Carlin replied. "Somebody got the votes out for Mr. McAdoo in Michigan. It doesn't seem to have any headquarters or tall quarters, though we have the literature."

FIND $2,000 OF STOLEN SILK.

Flight of Four Men Leads to Partial Recovery of Loot.

Policemen of the East 164th Street Station saw four men come out of a house at No. 21 East 115th Street at 1 o'clock this morning. When they saw them they ran. He could not catch them, so he investigated the premises and in the rear hall found two bolts of silk.

He notified the station and detectives were sent to make a search of the neighborhood. They found more silk in the basement of No. 25 East 115th Street, and both lots were identified by clothing brothers, No. 116 Madison Avenue, as a part of what they lost when their store was burglarized on Sunday. The loss has not been estimated, but that recovered is worth between $1,000 and $1,500.

BETTERS FAVOR SENATOR JOHNSON AND GOV. EDWARDS

Wall Street Odds Against Their Nomination Are 8 to 5 and 7 to 5.

Wall Street has begun to bet on the results of the Republican National Convention at Chicago and the Democratic Nominating Convention at San Francisco. The odds quoted yesterday by a well known authority on big events of this sort, who is a client of James W. Hall & Co., No. 67 Exchange Place, Indiana Gov. Edwards of New Jersey as the favorite of the Democrats for President, and Hiram W. Johnson of California of the Republicans.

The odds quoted by this authority against the relative chances of the leading candidates as those which should prevail at this stage of the game follow:

Republican ticket: Johnson 8 to 5, Wood 5 to 1, Lowden and Hughes each 5 to 1, Hoover 5 to 1, Harding and Butler each 7 to 1.

Democratic ticket: Edwards 7 to 5, Cox 5 to 1, Maaddoo 4 to 1, Clark 4 to 1, Wilson, Bryan and Marshall each 10 to 1.

JOHNSON WORRIES G. O. P. IN INQUIRY INTO SLUSH FUNDS.

Republican leaders resent it that certain Republicans are really investigating the Republican Party. They want it stopped. But the potential power of Hiram Johnson to come out and denounce the "Old Guard" as backing Leonard Wood, impels the leaders to let well enough alone.

So they are content to let the investigation run its course, with this exception: If the investigation throws too much mud on the various Republican candidates, and nobody makes a move to inquire into the financing of Hiram Johnson's campaign, and the direct and indirect support he is getting, some effort will be made to bring that phase of the question into the limelight.

Indeed, the word is going the rounds that Republican Senators who are not especially friendly to Herbert Hoover, but who believe his friends in California can furnish information about the expenditures for Johnson in California, are thinking seriously of insisting that the whole California primary be aired before the Senate Committee.

From the first the peculiar power which Hiram Johnson has held over his colleagues in the Senate has been attributed partly to the force of his personality, and his ability to pound off his thoughts in debate with a biting effectiveness, and partly to the fact that if Johnson is not continuously placated, he will bolt the convention at Chicago, seizing Republican hopes for victory from the vantage point of certainty to the uncomfortable stages of real doubt.

No matter what the Democrats have thought, the Republicans have right along sincerely believed they had an easy victory before them in November.

The Chicago episode has raised many "ifs" and "buts"—also there is no telling what the Progressives will do. Discontent and murmurs are growing from the conference here last week over the framing of the Republican platform. Will Hays brought the results of weeks and weeks of research to the veteran politicians of Capitol Hill, thinking they would be content to accept the report as a basis for recommendations. The report was to have been made public by this time.

Something has delayed it, and the military Progressive movement from New Jersey, is out with a statement that the Old Guard is really pigeon-holing the big volume of reports compiled by the committee of platform and policies.

Instead of making "recommendations" the elder statesmen on Capitol Hill are reported to have said that they did not feel they should dictate to the Committee of Resolutions of the Republican National Convention, but that they would present the reports of the Advisory Committee appointed by Will Hays as "information."

"ADVISERS" THINK "OLD GUARD" REBUFFED THEM.

Of course, it is too early to say what the Chicago Convention will do with the Advisory Committee's work. It may adopt the whole thing. But just now some of those who worked on the Advisory Committee feel that they have been rudely relegated to the ranks and that Old Guard rule still prevails.

Politically speaking, there is indeed a danger in publishing anything in advance of the conventions that might appear to commit the party, because it might be seized upon by a rival political party as a basis for criticism. If the platform omitted anything that the Advisory Committee recommended the Democratic organization would hesitate to point the finger of inconsistency at the Republicans.

But while the Republicans are having their troubles, something analogous to "Old Guard" rule is going on in the Democratic ranks. Democratic leaders are insisting privately that if Mr. Wilson insists on an unqualified endorsement of the covenant he will wreck the Democratic Party and its chances for victory. Here and there insurgency is cropping out, especially in connection with the demand for Eastern Democrats for a damp platform and the insistence of the Western Democrats that they could not force to carry the West unless they eliminated Prohibition as an issue.

Neither Republicans nor Democrats are very happy over the immediate future. They wish all the immensely increased money that the two conventions will bring in the summer, according to

$160,000 IN FARES PAID IN TEN WEEKS ON WHALEN BUSES

Suit to Stop Operation Shows They Carry 85,000 Passengers a Day.

Among other things brought out today before Supreme Court Justice Callaghan in Brooklyn, when the Brooklyn City Railroad renewed its effort to get rid of the competition of "municipal" buses, was the statement of Grover A. Whalen that the buses carry 85,000 passengers daily and between Oct. 27 and Jan. 6, transported 3,500,000 persons.

Some of those in the court room produced lead pencils and figured that the "take" of the buses is now $4,500 a day and that in the ten-week period named the fares amounted to $160,000. That was before bus competition was extended to Flatbush, Third, Graham and Greenpoint Avenue and the Crownston line.

To-day's proceedings were a trial of the issues involved in the railroad company's petition for a permanent injunction against Whalen—as an individual and as Commissioner of Plants and Structures—to restrain him from the continued operation of the buses in competition with the company. Commissioner Whalen was one of the witnesses. His testimony was brief.

Corporation Counsel William B. Carwell, when the Brooklyn City Railroad moved for a dismissal of the petition on the ground that the railroad company had "brought the wrong defendant to court."

"There is no evidence here," said Carwell, "that Commissioner Whalen, officially or individually, has any interest in these buses or collects a nickel from them. The people who should be here, if anybody, are the operators and owners of the buses."

Justice Callaghan denied Carwell's motion, pointing out that it was a matter of public record that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment authorized the Commissioner to go ahead with his plans, and that he had done so.

Said Attorney Dykeman for the railroad company, "to a letter addressed to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment by Mr. Whalen's first assistant, Deputy Commissioner Mara, in which he says, in substance, that the department's work on the bus business has been carried on in the interest of its regular work and duties, specifying particularly that the city's bridges suffer for lack of paint department painters are employed as checkers and starters of these municipal buses."

Association to give another luncheon for the special purpose of hearing the union leaders' arguments.

The Citizens' Transportation Committee, organized by the merchants to establish the independent trucking machine, received many letters to-day, and most of them contained subscriptions to the fund. Optimists said the fund would probably be $1,000,000 instead of $500,000.

No important change in the transportation situation was revealed to-day. The embargo established on rail shipments of freight are still in effect.

At the Public Service Commission office it was said that the freight congestion, according to the reports of Interstate Commerce Commission agents, in "the worst in years," with cars crowded on the sidings and food-stuffs spoiling. Efforts are being made to let merchants know where their goods are, so that they may do what they can to move them by truck. There are efforts also to establish emergency terminals.

FURTHER REDUCTIONS REPORTED IN TEXTILE INDUSTRY.

Bankers and commission agents in the wholesale dry goods district to-day confirmed reports of further reductions of operations in the textile industry, the silk trade being most affected. Cancellations of orders continue in heavy volume despite the efforts to allay apprehensions. Loans to manufacturers here and in New England show steady contraction. It is said that banks in this country are not directly concerned in the financial collapse reported from Japan, most advances against imports from the Orient having been cleaned up some time ago. There has been heavy buying of domestic silks at greatly reduced prices by retailers, who feature these wares in their price cutting sales.

Edward O'Malley, Commissioner of Markets, said food prices in New York had declined on an average of 12 per cent. in the last week and that the decline would continue, not only here but in other parts of the country. He said he believed prices would remain at a lower level "if the moral influence of the consumer continues to be felt."

Was This Baby Lost by Mother or Is Mysterious Poster a "Joke?"

Penciled Notice on Subway Kiosk, Near Brooklyn Bridge, Offers "500d" Reward.

Fastened to the grillwork of a subway kiosk at the Brooklyn Bridge station of the Lexington Avenue line to-day was the photograph of a pretty baby seated in its carriage.

What attracted the attention of Herman Ives, for twenty-five years the proprietor of a bootblack stand on the walk east of City Hall Park, was the rough pencilling on the picture:

"May 25.
"Sun.
"Baby lost
"(100 or 400) Broadway
"Mrs. Johnson
"500 d

Herman's interest in the photograph drew a crowd, and in the rush hour it was studied by hundreds who read the inscription, studied the face of the baby and went away wondering whether it was honestly the appeal of a heartbroken mother or merely the ill-advised prank of a would-be "joker."

BROKER HIT HER WITH HIGH HEeled SHOE, WIFE SAYS

Mrs. Walton Gets $1,000 Monthly Alimony and $5,000 Counsel Fees.

Supreme Court Justice John M. Tierney to-day ordered Harold Walton, oil promoter and stock broker, to pay his wife, Anna, $1,000 a month alimony pending the trial of her action for divorce. The court also granted Mrs. Walton $5,000 as counsel fees.

In her complaint Mrs. Walton accused her husband of seven adventures with "other women" in New York and New Jersey, according to the firm of Rosenthal & Halper, who are counsel for the plaintiff.

The divorce action, which is an outgrowth of her suit for separation started last year. In that suit Mrs. Walton made charges of cruel and inhuman treatment. She alleges the broker began to drink heavily soon after their marriage and that periodically was intoxicated the greater part of four months at that time.

On one of these occasions, Mrs. Walton charged, she and her husband were stopping at the Schuyler Arms apartments. It was near bedtime and she was dressed in negligees when suddenly Walton grabbed one of her high-heeled Parisian shoes and chased her, finally hitting her over the head with the heel of the shoe, cutting a gash and knocking her unconscious. When she came to, she swore, he was stuffing a pillow into her mouth. By a ruse she got free, the wife declared, and summoned a physician.

On another occasion, Mrs. Walton averred, the broker followed her to her sister's home in Newark and a scene followed in which the police were called.

Mrs. Walton, who gives her address as No. 605 West 142d Street, has a home in Atlantic City. She is prepared, she said to-day, to prove her good character by witnesses of prominence from New York, Chicago, Boston, New Orleans, Dallas and Trenton.

Walton, whom the wife describes as wealthy, makes his home at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

HAND-CUFFED MEN DASH FOR LIBERTY

Two Captured After Fleeing Through Crowd in Front of Brooklyn Court.

Samuel Levine, nineteen years old, of No. 399 Bleecker Avenue, and Alfred Silverman, twenty years old, of No. 165 Junius Street, both of Brooklyn, made a dash for liberty to-day while about to be put into the prison van at the curb in front of the New Jersey Avenue Court in Brooklyn. The young men had just been held in $1,000 bail each for the Grand Jury on charges of burglary. They were hand-cuffed to gether.

Raising their matted hands in the air, they cut a swath through the crowd and ran down New Jersey Avenue. Thomas Reilly, the van driver, pursued, firing several shots over the heads of the fugitives. James McGowan, a court attendant, drew his revolver and held the other prisoners waiting to get into the van.

Clearly soon brought back Levine and Silverman and they were taken to the jail. They are charged with robbing the women's tailor shop of Jacob Rodnick at No. 485 Stone Avenue, Brooklyn, early Sunday, May 23, of $3,000 worth of women's clothing.

GIRL WIFE FREED OF MURDER

Grand Jury Fails to Indict Mrs. Mensing.

PATERSON, N. J., May 25.—Mrs. Edna Mensing was freed of a charge of murder late yesterday after the Grand Jury had failed to return an indictment. Mrs. Mensing is seventeen years old. On Monday she shot and killed her husband, Henry, aged thirty-two.

She insisted the shooting was accidental. She said her husband was asleep and in a spirit of playfulness, pointed a supposedly unloaded revolver at his head, snapped the trigger to awaken him. There was an explosion, she told the police. A bullet entered his head, killing him instantly.

Mrs. Mensing said she did not know the revolver was loaded. She was in a daze when released and was taken home by her mother and will probably not be able to attend the funeral of her husband to-morrow from the home of his mother at Clinton, N. J.

Yonkers Cuts Down Great Tree

Where Washington Hid.

The Department of Public Works of Yonkers has cut down and chopped up what was left of the great chestnut tree in the front yard of Charles F. Coy, No. 113 Valentine Lane. There is a tradition that George Washington once hid in the hollow trunk, and that the tree was 700 or 800 years old when it died a few years ago. It was considered the biggest and oldest tree in the State. The circumference was thirty-five feet.

CARRANZA, SHOT DOWN AND DYING, BEGGED FOR RIFLE

"I Can't Get Up; My Leg Is Broken," He Cried—Volley Ended His Life.

MEXICO CITY, May 26 (Associated Press).—Formal investigation for the purpose of clarifying the part taken in the death of President Carranza, both by Col. Rodolfo Herrero and members of the Carranza party, is recommended by the commission of four named by Gen. Obregon and Gonzales to inquire into the tragedy at Tlaxcalantongo.

The commission says Col. Herrero joined the Carranza party at Puebla, State of Puebla on May 20. Herrero pledged allegiance anew, and promised to defend Carranza.

When Carranza reached Tlaxcalantongo he was led by Herrero to the hut where he was to sleep. Herrero was with Carranza when he was in this shelter were assigned to the President, Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, Minister of the Interior; Mario Mendez, Chief of Telegraphs; Gil Farias, the President's private secretary, and Capt. Amador and Suarez, his aides. Gen. Murguia and other members of the party were taken to different houses in the village. Before retiring Carranza ordered Capt. Suarez to assist in placing sentinels, all of whom were Herrero's men.

Herrero later told Carranza that a messenger had informed him his brother was injured, whereupon Herrero left the village, promising to return. At 3 o'clock on the morning of May 21 three of Herrero's men entered the President's hut, stating they had been ordered to report to him what the situation was.

Half an hour later the hut was attacked from all sides. President Carranza was heard to cry, "I can't get up; my leg is broken." He then begged for a carbine so that he could defend himself, but was answered by a volley which ended his life.

The other occupants of the hut fled, as did those in the other shelters. Herrero, at the head of his men, captured some of the party, who were taken twelve miles away, while others were left in Tlaxcalantongo. Four or five of the prisoners were forced to sign a statement that Carranza had committed suicide. This statement was dictated by Manuel Aguirre Berlanga and written by Paulino Pontes, Director of Mexican National Railways.

These facts are said in the report to "prove a conspiracy was prepared in advance by Herrero which inspired confidence in him by Carranza and ended in the President's betrayal."

The preamble to the report gives as reasons for the recommendation for an investigation the facts that Herrero fled, that his evidence was not available and that statements made by Carranza's companions conflicted in many particulars.

Statements attached to the report include an affidavit by Gen. Juan Barragan, Chief of the Presidential Staff, who said Herrero captured sixty of the Carranza party, thirty of whom escaped. The rest were released, he declared, when Paulino Pontes paid 1,500 pesos to Herrero's men by check. Gen. Pilar Sanchez asserted the men making the attack shouted: "Viva Mexico!"

Mexican officials and military officers who accompanied President Carranza in his flight into the mountains of Puebla were again censured by Gen. Alvaro Obregon to-day.

Asked to express his opinion regarding the death of the late Chief Executive, he said:

"Among the Generals and noted civilians accompanying Carranza, to whom they owed infinite favors and consideration, there was not even one Dimas and one Gestas (thieves crucified with Christ) who wanted to die at his side."
